

Lewis-Robertson.

A wedding in which many have been interested for weeks, on account of the prominence of the contracting parties, was that of Mr. William Overton Lewis of this city to Miss Susan May Robertson of Slater, that took place at the home of Dr. J. A. Robertson on Tuesday, March 5th, 1901, at high noon.

This pretty home wedding occurred amid surroundings most pleasant. The decorations of potted plants, ferns and palms throughout the house, formed a pretty setting for the services that were especially impressive and beautiful.

The bridal party entered the parlor in the following manner: Mrs. Bruce Barnett of Sedalia, matron of honor, came first; she was handsomely gowned in pearl gray broadcloth with trimmings of figured panne velvet, with bands of stitching on jacket and waist. She wore a light grey straw hat, with trimmings of grey silk mull and pink roses, grey gloves and bride's roses. She was followed by the bride on the arm of the groom, who took their places in the center of the room, where they were met by Rev. J. de Q. Donehoo, the officiating minister, who in a few well chosen words made the happy couple man and wife, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding chorus played by Mrs. Donehoo, who during the congratulations that followed played Mendelssohn's wedding March in tones soft and low.

The bride, who is no stranger in our city, where she with her mother spent a year or two, is a great favorite in Marshall's social world and is a very lovely and attractive young lady. Her wedding gown was of satin faced cheviott in light shade of castor, with an eton jacket with stitched straps. The handsome waist worn beneath this jaunty jacket, was of castor poplin draped and piped with white taffeta. The skirt corresponded in stitching to the waist; an exquisite hat of white silk mull, veiled in gold striped chiffon, the crown of which was formed of foliage, with shaded roses for trimmings, was all that was needed to make up this elegant costume. She gracefully carried bride's roses and a handsome ivory bound prayer book, a gift of the groom.

The groom is one of our most popular young business men and is an employee of the Hunter drug store in this city, where he has been for some years. He is the son of Add C. Lewis, who was recorder in this county for several terms and is a refined and elegant gentleman whose friends are legion.

After congratulations were extended an elegant wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party, relatives and a few friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis arrived in Marshall on the 3:30 C. & A. train on Tuesday afternoon and were driven to the home of the groom on East Arrow street where a little informal reception was given them the same night. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will after March 15th be at home to their friends on South Jefferson avenue, where they will go to housekeeping.

The REPUBLICAN extends congratulations for a bright and happy future.

Smith-Finnell.

R. O. Smith, son of the late Robert Smith at Fairville and Miss Pearl Finnell, daughter of J. B. Finnell of Mayview, were married at Lexington on Wednesday afternoon, March 5th, 1901.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith arrived in this city Wednesday evening and were driven to the home of the groom's mother at Fairville, where a reception was tendered the happy couple.

The bride is quite an accomplished young lady with many friends. The groom is a member of one of Saline's finest families, is a thrifty energetic young farmer and a most excellent gentleman.

The REPUBLICAN extends congratulations with the wish that their pathway through life may be one of sunshine.

Senior League Social.

The Senior League of the M. E. church, South, met with Miss Clara Brown at her home on West North street, Friday night, where a social was enjoyed by about sixty of the members. The social committee was composed of Misses Maude Jones, Katie Nave, Mrs. A. R. James and Mr. Pierce Bewley to whom the members are indebted for a pleasant evening.

As the guests assembled they were met by one of the committee who bound the right hand, making it useless during the contest which followed. A sheet of paper bearing the inscription, "Haste makes waste," with a pencil attached was given to each guest who was required to make with the left hand ten copies of the inscription. Wesley Smith gave the best production, while Prof. A. R. James for his attempt, well deserved the consolation prize.

In addition to the left handed contest, there were carroms, crokinole and several excellent musical selections, both vocal and instrumental, by Misses Cora Emison and Clara Brown. Mr. Emmet Smith with his guitar also contributed to the musical delights.

Light refreshments of dainty sandwiches, pickles and coffee were served.

James William Johnson.

Contributed.

The dark angel of death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Johnson last Friday afternoon and took away their only son, James William, aged 17 years, 3 months and 22 days.

The deceased was a manly young man, with a bright future, full of hope for himself and many friends who knew him.

"Jimmie," as he was called by many, was a sufferer of heart and lung trouble which he bore with great patience and bravery to the end. He had only been sick about four weeks, not being confined to his bed at all. But he knew that the end of his suffering was near and that he would soon be released from all pain. It is so hard to part with our loved ones here, still it is a comfort to know that what is our loss is their gain.

The deceased fell asleep at 5:15 p. m., Friday, March 1, 1901, surrounded by father, mother and all his sisters, except Mrs. R. G. Jones of Kansas City, who arrived a few hours after her brother's death.

Besides a host of relatives and friends, a father, mother, and five sisters survive the loss of an only son and brother. The sisters are, Mrs. R. G. Jones of Kansas City, Mrs. H. F. Hillen, Maude, Bettie and Hazel, of this city.

The funeral services were conducted by Elder B. T. Wharton from the residence Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial at Odell Cemetery.

We are thinking of thee Jimmie,
Thinking of the one we loved;
And we hope to meet thee Jimmie
In that heavenly home above.

Mrs. Margaret Sheue MacManis.

This venerable and most highly esteemed lady died at the home of her niece, Mrs. George Rose, on North Jefferson avenue, on Monday morning, March 4th, 1901.

Mrs. MacManis, having no children, had lived for seven years with Mrs. Rose, whom she had reared and for whom she felt the same affection as for an own daughter, having taken her to raise when a small child.

Deceased was 68 years of age and was sick with the grip only one week and never ill enough to be in bed but three days of that time. Heart failure is supposed to have caused death.

Her remains were taken to Glasgow Monday night by J. M. and George Rose and the funeral took place on Tuesday morning at the C. P. church in that city, of which deceased was a member.

This dear old lady will be greatly missed in this home, where for so many years her presence has been a source of great pleasure and comfort.

The REPUBLICAN extends sympathy to the bereaved family.

U. A. Thompson Dead.

Mr. U. A. Thompson, a highly respected citizen, died at his home near Wilton Springs on Saturday, March 2nd, at the age of 74 years, after an illness of five days with pneumonia. He had been in feeble health for several months and the end was not unexpected. He was a Virginian by birth and fought through the Confederate army, and lived with Rev. Wm. Bell at Miami at one time for several years. He was a good man and leaves many warm friends who are saddened at his demise.

Mr. Thompson has lived on the V. B. Swisher farm for 14 years and leaves a wife and one son, Phillip, who have the sympathy of the community.

The funeral was held on Sunday at the Baptist church in Napton at 12 o'clock, conducted by Rev. D. C. Bolton of Marshall. Burial in the church yard.

John S. Webb.

John S. Webb died at his home in Waverly on Wednesday, February 27th, 1901, of heart failure. Mr. Webb was formerly editor of the Waverly Times and on account of failing health sold his plant to L. A. Palmer of Kansas City. He was a consistent member of the Episcopal church, a fine character and a truly good man, possessing a genial, kind nature that made him friends wherever he went.

The funeral and burial took place on Friday and was largely attended. A wife and six children survive, viz., Mrs. Marsh Field of Napton, Mrs. Drummond and Mrs. Tucker of Windsor, John and Morris of near Waverly and Frank Webb of Old Mexico. They were all present at the funeral except the latter, who was unable to get here.

The REPUBLICAN extends sympathy to the bereaved family.
